Major Littleton W T Waller of the marine corps, testified to receiving from General Smith orders to "kill and burn," and render Samar "a howling wilderness."

CLAWS

Of the Eagle Just Reaching His Brother, When Howard Shot It To Death.

Bourbon, Ind, April 29—Howard Staley, a boy of 14, is the hero of the hour here. Yesterday he was cleaning a shot gun in the rear of his country home and watching a little baby brother playing in a sand pile a short distance away, when a huge bird was noticed to be soaring round and round above him.

Thinking it a hawk he loaded the gun to get a shot at it. This action was none too soon, for the bird made a swoop for the baby and just as its claws were within a few inches of the child Howard emptied both barrels at the eagle. The bird, being seriously wounded, showed fight, but the boy shot again, killing it.

It was found to be a gray eagle weighing 12 younds and measuring seven feet two inches from tip to tip. This is the first of its kind ever seen here.

MANY ARE AFTER JOBS

MAKING LIFE MISERABLE FOR DEPARTMENTS

Weeping Women With Tales of Starvation.

BEGGING FOR APPOINTMENTS

Man Who Was Recently a Millionaire Put to Work Earning $3 a Day at Washington

Washington, April 29.—A thousand or more discharged clerks from the census bureau are making life miserable for the heads of other government departments.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ailes this morning said: "Weeping women come here dragging their children with them and pour tales of starvation in my ears. Just this morning I gave a temporary job to an old man who a few years ago was a millionaire. He attended the Minneapolis convention in his special car. Some of the Senators who were his guests on that trip came to me with him and begged me 'If there is a God in Israel' to give him something to do. He is now earning $3 per day. Other men have told me that they have walked the streets because they have not the price of a bed."

EXPLOSOIN

On the Submarine Boat Fulton Badly Injures Five Men—List of Those Hurt.

Philadelphia, April 29—The maritime exchange has received a dispatch from Delaware breakwater, reporting that an explosion had occurred on the submarine torpedo boat Fulton and that five men were injured, one probably fatally. The Fulton sailed from New York yesterday for Hampton Roads. Ultimately the boat was to go to Washington for inspection by congressmen and government officers.

A later dispatch this afternoon says: The Fulton and her consorts had barely reached the breakwater when the accident occurred. The injured are: Lieut. Arthur MacArthur, U S N; Lieut Oscar Kopn, Austrian navy; Henry Moore and C B Miner, engineers; Chas Bechsold, gunner. Lieut Arthur McArthur is the son of the famous general of the same name who commanded the American army in the Philippines. All are badly injured.

The man who believes that one good turn deserves another is not necessarily a crank.

BURNED TO DEATH

Miss Kitzmiller Ran From House with Her Clothing Ablaze from Head to Foot.

Washington, April 29.—Miss Olive Kitzmiller, daughter of James E. Kitzmiller, formerly a well known resident of Canton, was burned to death at her home today. A towel had become ignited by a gas stove and while she was attempting to extinguish the flames they communicated to her clothing. She rushed into the streets ablaze from head to foot, several men tried in vain to extinguish the fire. Death occurred in two hours Kitzmiller is now an inspector in the employ of the district government He was one of McKinley's appointees.

A family bearing the name of Kitzmiller lived in Newark a few years ago and, it is believed, went from Newark to Canton. A Newark man who knew the Kitzmillers when shown the above dispatch this afternoon, said it was possible that Miss Kitzmiller who was burned to death, once lived here, but he thought that she was a relative of the Newark family.

As this is only an increase of $5,000 a year, the offer will be accepted.

KILLED HIS WIFE

BUT CLAIMS IT WAS WHOLLY ACCIDENTAL.

St. Louis Man Returned Home to Find That His Wife Was at a Theatre With a Man

St. Louis, Mo., April 29—Henry B Fargo, a prominent insurance agent, shot and killed his wife, Nettie, early this morning. The shooting occurred at their home on the return of Mrs. Fargo from a theatre Fargo claims it was accidental. Fargo returned yesterday from a business trip and says he found his wife, instead of meeting him at the train, attending the theatre with a man. He also declares she proved unfaithful to him on a former occasion. The shooting, he says, occurred when his wife begged his forgiveness and threw her arms about him, accidentally discharging the revolver.

RUSSELL SAGE'S PHILOSOPHY.

Wall Street Money King Defends Wealth and the Concentration of Capital.

New York, April 29—In a forthcoming issue of the Independent Sage will have an article on "Wealth a Decree of Justice," from which the following epigrams are taken:

To rail against the accumulation of wealth is to rail against the decrees of justice.

No man has a right to wealth who has not a sense of the responsibility that goes with it.

Capital represents crystallized efforts of the past, while labor is present energy and skill.

Intelligence, industry, honesty and thrift produce wealth, and those who possess such qualities are best fitted for its custody.

The persons who are unable to acquire money are necessarily not capable of its proper use or care.

So long as some men will have more sense and more self control than others, just so long will such men be wealthy.

It is just as wicked to intrust some men with large amounts of money as it would be to put an idiot in charge of an express train.

The chief responsibility of the man of wealth is in using his money for the purposes that will do the greatest good to the greatest number.

It is observable that the very rich men of today are far more democratic than ever before in the history of the world.

There may come a time when the State will put a limit on a man's fortune.

To put a premium on brains and honesty is the only way to level things up.

Any restriction of the rights of capital would work incalculable injury to the workman.

Concentration of wealth is certainly good for the Americans.

I fail to see the dangers arising from wealth that the demagogues make such a hue and cry about.

It is to the concentration of capital and the concentration of labor, which amounts to the same, that our commercial supremacy throughout the world will be due.

PULLED OPEN THE THROTTLE

AN INSANE MAN PLAYS HAVOC WITH B. & O. ENGINES

A Lot of Boxcars and The Roundhouse.

MAN WAS FINALLY ARRESTED

And Will BeTried Today for Lunacy. He Thinks He Was Obeying Orders.

Fairmont, W. Va., April 29.—Three large engines belonging to the B. and O. railroad company, are wrecked almost beyond possibility of repair and the entire end of the round house torn down, as the result of the crazy pranks of Samuel Gicord, a young man from Jayenne. Gicord came to the city, but evinced no symptoms of insanity while mingling with his friends here.

As he was walking out near the roundhouse last night he became suddenly overwhelmed with a peculiar hallucination that he had received orders to take a train out, and with a yell he boarded a freight engine and pulled the throttle open.

It was No. 222, On the same sidng directly in front, lay two similar engines, but none of the crew happened to be in the cabs.

With a rush the engine containing the demented man tore up the track in the direction of the roundhouse and struck No. 232 with a crash that was heard for blocks around. Next came the other, and it suffered the same fate as the first. On the three engines went until they hit the side of the roundhouse, which they literally tore from its foundation. By this time a large crowd of railroad men had arrived on the scene.

Gicord was standing firmly by his lever and was wildly gesticulating and yelling like a demon. Reversing the lever, and again turning on all the steam he could command, Gicord rode his engine down the side track to what all thought to be sure death for at the other end near the main track was a bunch of box cars, and it was evident to the spectators that the lunatic would not fare as well this time as he had when he tore into the roundhouse. No one cared to risk a flying leap on the approaching engine and all stood breathless awaiting the result of the collision.

Another terrific crash and the cameback plowed into the "empties," casting them to the four winds and piling the track full of debris for several hundred feet. All this time Gicord stuck to the engine, shouting and frantically exclaiming that he would follow orders if was carried to the lower regions.

The last collision, together with the waste of steam, placed a quietus on the crazy engineer, and while he was attempting to extricate the locomotive from the mass of cars, a powerful fire man jumped aboard and pinned him to the cab floor until aid came.

B. & O. Detective Downey had a warrant sworn out immediately. Gicord will be tried today on a lunacy charge. He talked little in the jail, but continued to repeat that he had to fulfill his duty and carried out his orders.

WEAKENED

At the Sight of a Knife—Cross' Strange Story of How the Suicide Was Planned.

Washington C H., April 29.—A new phase has been put on the recent attempt of Henry Cross, the negro demon, awaiting trial on tht charge of killing nine year old Ralph Thompson, to murder his wife and then commit suicide. He stabbed her 25 times in the neck and wrist with the weapon before the jailer disarmed him. Cross now divulges substantially the following story:

"When my wife called upon me at the county jail and asked Sheriff Phillips to allow her to stay with me an hour in my cell she knew all about the knife I had. We had a mutual plan to die together that night. She agreed to it and seemed as anxious to end all our troubles as I did. I was to kill her and then kill myself, but when it came time to put out plans into execution she screamed, when I commenced to stab her. We intended to die at the same time, and we would have done so had she not changed her mind."

The recovery of Mrs Cross from the terrible wounds inflicted upon her by her husband is one of the most remarkable things to be found in the history of surgery. She was hacked and stabbed from her belt to the top of her head and yet she is getting well Her physicians, when first called, were of the opinion that she could not last an hour. Cross, who cut his own throat and ran a knife between his ribs in search of his heart, is also about well again, and will be able to attend his trial for the murder of Ralph Thompson, which is set for May 19.

THE BLUE LAWS OF OLD BOSTON

Man Fined for Working on His Own Lot—Another for Stopping Up Hole in Roof.

Boston, April 29—One of the workings of the blue laws were exemplified in the courts here Monday. Because he worked about a little green plot in front of his home at Revere, Sunday, Fred Gould of the Boston fire department, was hauled into police court. He pleaded not guilty and told Judge Cutler that what he was doing was not work. It was only recreation. Judge Cutler found him guilty, but placed the case on file.

Edward Pritchar a mechanic in Revere had to pay $5 fine in the same court for tacking a piece of cloth over a hole in the roof to keep the water from coming into his kitchen

GEN. SMITH DENOUNCED

SHOULD BE STRIPPED OF HIS UNIFORM.

No Justification of General's Heartless Orders.

TO MURDER AND LAY WASTE

Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania Bitterly Attacks the General—Believes President Will Act.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—General Jacob Smith and his actions in the Philippines were roasted to a turn in the House yesterday afternoon. Representative Sibley, Republican, of Penn., denounced Smith and his orders to make Samar a wilderness, in the strongest terms.

Mr. Sibley spoke briefly, but what he said was to the point. He denied the right of any such man to wear the United States uniform, and instead of calling on the President to remove him from office, he announced that his implicit belief in the justice of the President was such that he believed he would strip the uniform from Smith's back within 24 hours.

"When I have heard the statements made that we were cruel in the conduct of that war," he said, "I have thought ,perhaps, the partisan was speaking. But when I have read, as I have within the past 48 hours, that a general wearing the uniform of the army of the United States, one who stands under the shadow of of our flag, issues orders, not to conciliate a province, but to leave it a howling wilderness, and to kill all above ten years of age, it seems to me humanity must have marched backward for 18 centuries, and that Herod again appears. I have read of Timour, the Tartar; I have read of Achilles; I have read of the Saracen scourge, but I thank God that since the tragic scene on Calvary it has taken 18 centuries to produce a Smith. I have read of the water cure. I believe that was exaggerated.

"Can any man whose blood pounds in his pulse, any man who has read his Bible or who has been reared at the knee of a Christian woman, justify the perpetration of such cruelties upon another man who wears the guise and the image of his Creator? And yet, we hear this man attempting to justify acts by which men are pumped so full of water, nearly to drowning them, and then brought back to life by thumping them over the stomach with the butts of muskets That is not civilizaton—that is not Christianizing the world.

"I am thankful that these are sporadic cases. Against that, as a man who belongs, I hope, not alone to the Republican ranks, but to the whole brotherhood of man, the wide world round, I want the members of this House, on this side of the chamber and that, to voice their protest against all such measure. (Applause.) A friend of mine said a few minutes ago, "Oh, I know you had better wait and hear his defense.' I hope the President of the United States will have the courage, upon what the man admits, to discharge him dishonorably from the service that he has disgraced. He admits that he issued the order to leave the province a howling waste and a wilderness, and to kill all above 10 years of age, the innocent with the guilty. That man never ought to be permitted to stay in the service of the United States until the sun goes down.

"He is a disgrace not alone to the party, but to every man who ever wore the uniform of the United States, and he is a blot and a disgrace to our present civilization."

Mr. Williams (Dem.) of Mississippi followed with a few remarks sustaining the attitude of Mr. Sibley, and expressive of his horror at the outrages that have been committed in Samar under Smith's orders.

The conference report on the Chinese exclusion bill was adopted without debate. This sends it to the President.

Maoris are to be enrolled a volunteers by the New Zealand Government. It is expected that 5,000 will be recruited in six months.

The increased income tax in Great Britain was adopted by the House of Commons the other day by a majority of 230, while the government proposal for an increase of the duties on breadstuffs had a majority of only 86. This indicates the popularity of these two modes of taxation in Great Britain. There have been no customs taxes in England on breadstuffs since 1860. It was promised that the grain duties will be temporary, but the belief is that they may be continued and form a basis for preferential concessions to the British colonies. Canada of course is interested in getting her wheat into England on better terms than American wheat.

The statement is made that the receipts of beef cattle at Chicago for this year so far are in excess of those of last year by over 32,000 head, while the receipts of hogs are greater by 369,000 head. If this assertion is true, it effectually disposes of the claim that the rise in prices which has been witnessed all over the country is due to a genuine scarcity of fresh meat. The situation in regard to the meat supply has radically changed in the last few years. The enormous development of cold storage facilities has brought about a condition which permits the Chicago combine to place hundreds of thousands of carcasses in an atmosphere where they will keep indefinitely, and in consequence the combined packers are able to dole out as much or as little meat as they see fit, and that carries with it the power to regulate prices.

COL. KILBOURNE

Not Out of Politics, Though Not a Candidate for Congress in the Columbus District.

The following letter from Col. James Kilbourne explanatory of his present position in politics and giving reasons why he is not seeking the nomination for Congress in the Columbus district, will be read with great interest by his many friends in Licking county.

Columbus, O., April 28, 1902.

My Dear Mr Newton:

A marked copy of "The Advocate" just received contains the statement that I have refused to be a candidate for Congress from this district, and will in a few days announce in a formal letter my retirement from politics.

I have declined the urgent solicitations of many Democrats here to be a candidate for Congress because, in the first place, I have not the slightest desire to go there, and because, even if my inclinations were otherwise business engagements at this time would prevent, but I have no intention of ceasing to take an active interest in politics.

No good Democrat, especially at a time like this, when the fundamental principles upon which our government was founded are being insidiously undermined, will cease his efforts to maintain them, and I hope you will let my friends in "Old Licking" know that my defeat in the contest for the governorship last fall has not lessened my interest in the Democratic cause, which shall have my active and devoted service as long as I shall live.

Yours very truly,
JAMES KILBOURNE,

UNCLE ELI'S FABLES.

The Miserable Peasant Who Failed to Better Himself.

One day the Peasant went with tears in his eyes to the Sage and said:

"O wise man, but I am sorely afflicted and need thy assistance!"

"Been buying another gold brick, eh Erastus?" kindly inquired the Sage.

"No, 'tis not that. It is that my taxes are so great that I cannot pay them, and the king's man threatens to burn the soles of my feet if I do not. Alas, but why am I not the taxgatherer instead of the taxed?"

"That's easily enough fixed," replied the wise man, and he told the Peasant

"O WISE MAN, BUT I AM SORELY AFFLICTED."

to go to the king and make use of the pull he gave him. 'Twas so done, but only three days had elapsed when the Peasant returned to wring his hands and wail:

"O Sage, but I seek thy great kindness again!"

"What's the matter this time?" was asked.

"As a taxpayer, O man of wisdom, I could not pay my rates, and the taxgatherer threatened to burn my feet."

"Yes; I know."

"But as a taxgatherer, O venerable, I cannot collect taxes, and the king threatens that I shall shortly have no feet to burn!"

Why the Governor Vacated.

"I had been assigned to a room at a hotel in a small southern town," said the drummer, "and while making ready to go to bed I turned back the sheets and found the place already inhabited. They were there by the score, and I called up the landlord and pointed them out and asked:

"'Is this the sort of bed you expect a decent man to sleep in?'

"'By George, but that explains it!' he exclaimed, with a whistle of surprise.

"'It doesn't explain how I am going to get any sleep tonight!'

"'No; but it explains why the governor of the state, who was stopping here one night last week, got up after an hour and went out to finish the rest of the night in the barn. We all took it that he was odd in his ways, and I charged him four bits extra for disturbing the house, but I guess the old man was level headed, and I jumped on him too hard!'"

You may hesitate to listen to the advice of strangers, but the testimony of friends or residents of Newark is worth your most careful attention. It is an easy matter to investigate such proof as this. Then the evidence must be conclusive. Read the following:

Mr. J. W. Lippincott of No. 83 Chestnut street says: "I was troubled a good deal with rheumatism and a pain right through my back more like a thrust of a sharp knife than anything else I can compare it to. I started using Doan's Kidney Pills sold at Crayton's drug store. Their effect was really wonderful. They drove away the pain out of both of my sides; there was not a trace of it left. I stoop at will, and lift weight, yet feel as supple as ever I felt."

HINTS FOR FARMERS

To Study Indian Corn.

At last the grandest of all plants grown by the American farmer is beginning to receive the attention it deserves, and this, too, by the state which it has enriched more than any other. The Illinois legislature has appropriated the goodly sum of $10,000 annually to the University of Illinois to be employed solely in the study of the Indian corn plant. Work in this line, undertaken many years ago by Morrow and Hunt, was useful and served its purpose in that day. Now, with proper financial backing, Hopkins and Shamel are already making a splendid showing, brief as has been the time covered by their efforts. Whoever may have been so fortunate as to attend almost any farmers' institute in Illinois during the past winter where professors from the university were lecturing on corn could not fail to note the marvelous interest which was shown in regard to the merits of seed corn. At each of the institutes would be seen groups of men gathered about the instructor with ears of corn in their hands, examining them critically and comparing them one with another. Their interest and enthusiasm were almost as great as though this heaven given grain had been placed in their hands for the first time. Seed corn culture and the breeding of corn have been discussed with an earnestness and interest never before apparent. If the legislative benefaction to the university had brought forth nothing more than that which has already been accomplished by the awakening of interest now in evidence, the returns are already tenfold the amount of the appropriation. But the present is only the beginning.

Pruning Cherry Trees.

The inquiries which come to us about the pruning of cherry trees are easily answered: Don't! Of course, like any other tree in transplanting, there should be considerable cutting back—shortening—of the branches to correspond with the loss of roots in digging up. This is important with all transplanted trees, and for one or two years afterward a few small branches may require removal in order to form the head properly. For instance, sometimes two leading shoots start out, and one of these is to be cut off. But when fairly started, with a well balanced head, the knife is not merely useless with cherry trees, but generally injurious.

In forming the top a low head three or four feet high is best, and if some shoots—half a dozen or so—come out on the trunk below the top it is better not to cut them off, but keep them under control by pinching the growing points from time to time. This is for the protection of the trunk. These small shoots and leaves give shade from the sunshine and are unfavorable to the work of certain injurious insects.

Got Pay For Sheep His Dog Killed.

A farmer named Shaw, living in Orange county, owned a dog and paid taxes on it. One night he found his dog had killed seven fine ewes and was tearing away at the throat of another. Farmer Shaw shot the dog dead. Then he put in a bill for $60 against Orange county for the eight sheep his dog had killed. "It was my dog that did it, I know," he admitted.

Then the commissioners laughed at him for expecting pay for the sheep that his own dog had killed.

"But," argued Shaw, "I had paid a tax to the county on him, and if he had killed some other fellow's sheep the county would have to pay for them, wouldn't it? Well, haven't I got as many rights against holding a sheep killing dog as my neighbors have? I want them $60."

The commissioners stopped laughing and asked their counsel what it would be best to do, and he said he guessed Farmer Shaw had 'em where the hair was short and they had better pay, and they did.—Putnam County (N. Y.) Republican.

Whitewash For Farm Buildings.

The woodwork of stables, fowlhouses and sheds of all kinds can be largely preserved from decay by continued whitewashing. An enduring whitewash is made as follows:

One-half bushel of lime slacked in boiling water in a covered vessel to keep in steam. Strain this through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it a peck of common salt previously dissolved in warm water and three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot. Add also one-half pound of Spanish whiting and a pound of glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then melted in a gluepot. Add five gallons of hot water in the mixture and stir well. After being allowed to stand for a few days, protected from dust, the wash should be applied hot. This mixture is some trouble to make, but where a good wash is wanted it is highly satisfactory.

Alfalfa a Profitable Crop.

It has been demonstrated that alfalfa, where it does well, is a more profitable crop than corn, sells for more money and costs less to produce it. In consequence of this fact much land in Kansas heretofore devoted to corn has been given over to alfalfa, and the farmers are well pleased with the result. It is also a better drought resister and consequently a surer crop. In the southwest there is far too little alfalfa grown. There are millions of acres in Texas and Louisiana planted in cotton and corn that would yield nearly four times the value of alfalfa. We don't raise too much corn, but too little hay, and alfalfa is our best hay crop.—Dallas Farm and Ranch.

ALBERT and the SANDGLASS

A regular April shower was falling. The crystal drops splashed on the window and ran down like tears in little streams.

Albert's nose was pressed and flattened against the glass as he said to his mother: "Oh, I don't want to stay at home! I don't, don't want to! I want to go down to Mr. Hobson's!"

"Oh, no, Albert," his mother replied. "Just get your box of playthings and have a good time. It will clear off after awhile. Then perhaps you can go."

Still Albert stood in the chair eagerly looking down the street across the common toward the white parsonage nestled by the hill, where in winter all the village children went coasting. For Mr. Hobson, the kindly pastor of the little country church, had a warm place in his heart for children, and they loved to go to his home, where they had such good times.

Albert jumped down from the chair looking cross and unhappy.

"I don't want to do anything but go to Mr. Hobson's," he cried out.

Uncle Bob sat reading his paper by the open grate, where just a little blaze flickered. Albert thought that Uncle Bob knew most everything, and he went over to him, hoping that he would suggest something agreeable.

Uncle Bob looked up just then and said: "It seems to me I hear a little boy say 'I don't want to' very often. It's generally better to do what mother wants you to do."

Then he jumped up and dared Albert to play a game of marbles with him, and directly they were down on the carpet snapping and shooting the bright glass balls back and forth.

Just as Uncle Bob said, "There, that's the third game I've lost!" the sun peeped in and made a great bright yellow spot on the carpet, so bright that Albert started up, clapping his hands.

"Can I go now, ma? Can I go now?" he called out.

"Yes," answered his mother, "if you will put on your rubbers."

Albert was out in the entry in a moment and tugging to get his rubbers on, and his short legs were soon taking him down across the common. Presently he stood on the piazza, ringing the bell, at the parsonage.

Miss Mary, the minister's daughter, came to the door.

Albert spoke up promptly, "I've come a-visiting."

"Walk right in," said Miss Mary.

He followed her through the entry into the sitting room.

She thought she knew what Albert wanted, so she pulled out a little table from the wall and drew a chair up to it. She put a big dictionary into the chair and lifted Albert up on to the dictionary. Then she set before him two little glasses.

One was a three minute glass—two little crystal bulbs of glass joined by a small connecting stem. One of these bulbs had very pretty red sand in it. The bulbs were mounted in a round wooden frame.

When the bulb that had the sand in it was turned so that it was at the top, the sand began to run slowly into the lower bulb, and it took just three minutes for it to run from one bulb to the other.

Albert was never tired of seeing the sand run back and forth. And he wanted a three minute glass of his own so much! The other glass was a multiplying glass. It looked like a small spyglass.

Miss Mary took the multiplying glass in her hand, passing it to Albert, and said, "Now, Albert, if you look through this at the three minute glass you'll see what you did the last time you were here."

Albert took the multiplying glass and looked.

"Ooh-ee!" said he. "Oh, see 'em! See 'em! One, two, four, twelve, eight! Oh, Miss Mary, there's lots of 'em!"

"Should you like one of them?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am. May I have one?"

"Yes," she said; "if you don't take ours, you may have one of those others."

Then, holding the multiplying glass close to his eye, he put one hand out, with the fingers spread out as far as he could make them reach. Carefully he groped and grasped. Now his hand was on it. Now he had it.

Putting down the multiplying glass, he looked for the other glass that he thought he had caught, and it was gone. He tried it over and over again, and every time just as he thought he had it the glass that he thought he had caught seemed to slip away.

"Where do they go to?" he said to Miss Mary.

"Sure enough!" she replied.

How patiently he tried! Finally he had to go home. But when he got down from the dictionary he began looking underneath the table.

"What are you looking for?" questioned Miss Mary.

He didn't answer for a moment, but went down on his hands and knees, pulling up the edges of the rugs and still looking.

"Why," answered Albert, "they must have got away somehow. And I know they're somewhere, but I can't find another one but yours."

"Never mind," she said. "You can come again and try to find them."

"Yes; I will," cried Albert.

Then he went home.

But he had to tell Uncle Bob all about it. And he said: "How strange! I believe I'll go in and get Miss Mary to let me see them some day."

And Uncle Bob was as good as his word. He went in to see the glasses one day. After that he had business in the city and was gone for a week.

When he came back, he said to Albert: "I know a little boy somewhere who often says 'I don't want to.' He says it to his mother and to his father so often that I think it sounds very bad. Now, I don't believe in hiring folks to be good. But I do sometimes give rewards of merit. If that little boy leaves off saying 'I don't want' to' and if I don't hear him say it for seven days and if nobody else hears him in that time, I shall go down to the minister's with you and see if I can't help you catch one of those little sandglasses."

"Oh, would you, Uncle Bob?"

"Yes, I will, now, honest," said Uncle Bob, "if that little boy leaves off what I said."

"Why, that little boy is me!" shouted Albert.

"You?" replied Uncle Bob, looking astonished. "Is that little boy you? Well, well, I do declare! Then you can fix it. Do you begin today?"

"Yes, sir," answered Albert.

It was three weeks before Albert succeeded in doing what Uncle Bob proposed. The first time he tried it was two days before he said "I don't want to." Then he had to begin again.

At last he succeeded for seven days.

Then Uncle Bob went with him to see if they could catch an extra glass.

When Albert was seated at the table, Uncle Bob sat close to him on one side. "Now," said he to Albert, "shut your eyes tight. Are they real tight shut?"

"Yes, sir," answered Albert.

"Then," continued Uncle Bob, "I don't really think it makes any difference, but just for the sake of form you had better say what I tell you: 'Come, come, fairy, come. Send the glass, and I'll be dumb.'"

And Albert repeated it.

Then Uncle Bob said: "Perhaps you won't get it the first time. If you don't,

HE NEVER TIRED OF SEEING THE SAND RUN BACK AND FORTH.

shut your eyes and say: 'Uncle Bob and I are here. Send the glass, my fairy, dear.' Shut your eyes and put the multiplying glass up to one of them and put out your hand, and I'll see what I can help you to find."

Albert did as Uncle Bob had said, and as he put out his hand he felt Uncle Bob's hand there, too, and Uncle Bob whispered very loudly: "There, I'm helping you. Have you got it?"

And he looked, and, sure enough, there he had it—a glass just like the other.

"Uncle Bob, you are just the smartest man!" cried Albert. "Let's go home and show this to mamma. Oh, I'll try so hard not to say 'I don't want to!'"

And, holding the sandglass out before him, Albert started for home, dancing and prancing around Uncle Bob all the way.—Arthur Ward.

A Party Trick.

Here is a party game or trick which, while it does not rank as one especially intellectual, nevertheless offers a nice diversion for the time:

First begin the conversation with some special person present in a casual manner and then have it lead on to their strength of mind or power of resistance. When you have them most deeply interested, make the remark that you can compel them to move from their seat without touching them. Naturally they will contradict this boast. Then slip off about two feet and look them steadily in the eye, never allowing your eye to leave theirs for a second. In a few moments they will become so tired of sitting still and so uneasy under your steady gaze as to get up of their own accord and change seats or move farther down the settee. When they do this, of course you have become successful in your party trick

"I Don't Want to" Land.

A little girl was out of sorts,
And so one day she planned
To leave mamma and go into
The "I don't want to" land.
She thought 'twould be so easy there
To live with naught to do;
She would not have to mind at all,
You see, the whole day through.

And so she went, and for awhile
'Twas bright and happy there.
But by and by the lights went out,
And chill was in the air.
And horrid noises smote her ears,
And it began to rain.
She fled from "I don't want to" land
And came back home again.

EING TORN DOWN FOR A NEW RESIDENCE.

he Old Piper House on North Sixth Street is Disappearing—A New Home is to Go Up.

The old Piper residence on North ixth street is being torn down and a w modern structure will soon be ected on the site. This was an old d familiar dwelling when the oldest habitants in that part of the city ere mere school children. Could its building talk it doubtless would ll when, in its juvenile days it heard e frogs croak unscared, and the wild eer fly unmolested around the hor-. How it stood away off in the ntry, surrounded by corn fields and eat fields, with scarcely another lding in sight. But, before its time-taking off, it has seen the ox-cart d Yankee sled give way to the auto-obile, bicycle and electric carc, hich now pass near its doors. It has en children born, reared to manhood d womanhood, become useful and mous, and then die of old age.

Miss Hattie Piper, who has lived in is house for the last 58 years, moved t last week, having previously sold property to her nephew, George per of Granville, who now is tear-it down amidst the accumulated st of ages, but to the delight of all neighbors. Mr. Piper will soon ve a beautiful home, situated too, the heart of the city.

remarkable thing for this season the year occurred a few days ago. large swarm of bees alighted in a e in front of the residence of Mr. m Crouse, several miles west of the y, near the township line on the oron road. Mr. Crouse, who can t see very well, secured the assist-ce of a neighbor, and succeeded in ing the bees. This is a remarkable currence from the fact that bees in part of the country rarely swarm fore the middle of May.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Knobs O' Tennessee" was the splendid pastoral drama presented by Mr Harry L. Webb and his elegant company of players at the Grand Opera House last evening, and it was an artistic and finished production of Hal Reid's great play. The stage settings were very rich, and the play was strongly cast, while the specialties between the acts were above the standard.—Wheeling Daily Register, April 25.

The above play will be presented at the Auditorium Wednesday night, April 30th.

Not Home Talent.

We wish the public to understand that the benefit for the stage employes to be given soon is not a home talent attraction, but a traveling organization of recognized merit with a carload of special scenery. The prices are 25, 50 and 75 cents. 4-28-3t

Western College Songs.

Hinds and Noble, Cooper Institute New York City, have just published "Songs of the Western Colleges," in which over 75 western colleges are represented by one or more typical songs.

All the world loves the college student, and under no circumstances is he more amiable or more provocative of contagious geniality than when he sings his college songs.

For many years the western colleges have been singing their college songs unnoticed. The compilers have endeavored to secure all of these songs and place them in a book which would not only reveal these native Western songs to the East, but give to the Western colleges a book containing all the songs familiar to their alumni as well as to the undergraduates Hinds & Noble, publishers, Cooper Institute, New York City.

COL. A. B. COIT

ASSUMES COMMAND OF FOURTH REGIMENT

As the $5000 Subscription Seems to be Almost in Hand—Colonel's First Order.

Columbus, O., April 29.—Colonel A B Coit has at last accepted the colonelcy of the Fourth regiment, O N G and was sworn into office Monday afternoon The acceptance of Colonel Coit was based upon his confidence in the ability of the board of trade military committee to raise the fund necessary to maintain the regiment without loss to its officers Some of the members of the board of trade committee have been very slow in reporting whether they have accomplished anything and Chairman Fred Lazarus, Treasurer W H Andrews and Colonel Coit went out themselves Monday They succeeded in securing subscriptions aggregating $450, which brings the total above the $3000 mark They are certain that the necessary $5000 will be secured before long.

Immediately upon the induction of Colonel Coit into office he issued the following general order:

"General order No. 1. Having been elected and commisisoned colonel of the Fourth infantry, Ohio National Guard, I hereby assume command (2) The following appointments are announced: Captain, Ross Shaw; Inspector of rifle practice to be regimental adjutant, vice George B. Kilbourne, resigned. (3) The other members of the staff now holding commissions will be retained and are directed to report to the commanding officer within five days."

Colonel Kilbourne resigned on account of the demands of his private business. Captain Shaw, who succeeds him, is a member of the staff of Adjutant General Gyger and well known to the military of Ohio Colonel Coit has already begun the reorganization of the regiment and will no doubt succeed if the funds are secured It is believed that the greater part of the money raised by the board of trade committee will be devoted to the Fourth, but some of it will go to all of the other O N G organizations of Columbus including battery H troop B and Ninth battalion.

A WARRIOR VANQUISHED

[Original.]

I went to the civil war at eighteen with my uncle, an old "regular," as his orderly, he being held responsible by my mother that no harm should come to me. This was rather remarkable since I was going to war, but it was necessary, I being heir to a large fortune, and if I were killed it would go a-begging.

It turned out that I needed to be protected from something as dangerous, so my mother considered, as the bullet—that is, a sweet, little penniless country girl. One day when riding past a small plantation I espied a young miss with soft eyes, an immense cable of hair reaching almost to her heels and a lithe, trim figure, with a peach bloom in each cheek. She was standing at the gate looking at us soldiers as we passed. We went into camp near by, and that night I stole away to find her. The result was a love affair, which I confided by letter to my mother.

One morning my uncle called me into his tent and stormed at me for a young idiot, threatening that if I did not give up this foolish business he would "break" me and send me home. I told him that he could not break me without cause and I would do as I pleased in the matter.

"Very well," he said. "I will go to the girl. These country people are easily bought off."

I kept a close watch on his movements, and when he called on my lady love I was in an adjoining room, concealed by a curtain. There was a flutter about the house as he rode up, followed by two orderlies, looking as grim as if he were about to engage the enemy.

"Where is your daughter?" he thundered to the meek little mother as he stalked into the house to the jingle of his spurs and the rattle of his sword.

"Oh, general," cried the poor woman, "take everything, but do not burn the house! It is our only home."

"Nonsense; I'm not going to harm you. I want to speak with your daughter."

"The silver is in the well. Take it. Only leave us in peace."

"My good woman, do you take me for a robber? All I wish is to speak a few words to your daughter concerning—well, concerning a private matter."

"She is in there. Don't hurt her, general. She is only a child."

By this time my ferocious uncle had discovered that he had to deal with a different kind of enemy from what he had been accustomed to. He twirled his mustache nervously as he stepped into the room, where he was confronted by a delicate girl of seventeen.

"You—I—I mean that young idiot of a nephew of mine"—

I had seen the general, advancing at the head of his troops, suddenly brought up by an enemy in force, but unappalled. Now he was paralyzed at facing a young girl. He pulled himself together and continued his volley of words:

"The match is not to be thought of. My nephew is a young fool"—

The general faltered. His enemy was standing with her hands crossed demurely before him, her eyes bent on the floor, looking up occasionally at the warrior to see if he were going to run her through with his sword.

"My nephew, I say," he started on again, "is nothing but a boy with—with confounded good taste, the young rascal!"

Having made a failure in a direct attack, he concluded to attempt to accomplish his ends by stratagem.

"My dear child," he said, "there are a great many reasons why you should be a good little girl and give up this boy, who hasn't sense enough to keep out of an ambush of idiots. Now, what I want you to do is to promise"—

The general stopped, stalled. The girl looked up at him as much as to ask, "What is it you wish me to promise?"

"He will be very rich," pursued the general, "and you, of course, will be—well, you are not rich, you know"—

The general halted to bring up his guns, but before he could do so his little enemy raised her shrinking figure and, looking him squarely in the face, said:

"General, you may tell him that he is free. I am a poor country girl. He is heir to a fortune. No one shall ever say that I"—

She burst into tears.

A shower of bullets is not a terrible thing to an old soldier, because he has become accustomed to them, but a shower of tears is quite a different matter. The general was thrown into a panic. His infantry was in confusion; his guns were spiked; his army was routed.

"By the great horn spoon," he muttered, "what sort of disgraceful fix is this? Dry your tears, little one. That scapegrace isn't good enough for you, but if you want him you shall have him and every unmarried man in my brigade to boot!"

He seized both the "little one's" hands, in which her face was buried, and, pulling them away, drew her toward him, and her head rested against his breast.

"General," I said, stepping out from the curtain, "if I were in command and you were a subordinate I'd break you for a poltroon and a coward unable to stand up against a chit of a girl."

Without a word he stalked out of the room, mounted his horse and rode back to camp.

A few days after my uncle's visit we fought a battle. I was wounded, taken to the house of my little love and nursed by her. This forever settled the matter.

THOMAS KENT WATERMAN.

HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL.

Experiences of Some of Our Wealthiest Men—Good Health the Keynote.

Success does not follow ill health; on the contrary, it takes good health to make one successful. A good appetite, ability to sleep soundly all night long, and arise feeling rested and refreshed, with a body that has no pains or aches, and a clear brain, full of vim, ideas and insight into business, is what make success. The Vanderbilts, Goulds, Astors, Havemeyers, and a long list of others that we could name, attribute their wealth and success in business to long hours and hard work, which were made possible by good health. Bad health is the cause of more failures in business than anything else. "Blood Wine" keeps the health good. It cleanses every particle of blood that flows through your veins. It abstracts the impurities and germs, forces them out of the body, and leaves only the pure, rich blood, which feeds the weakened tissues, and keeps one in good health. "Blood Wine" will give you a clear brain, so that you can think, reason, plan, and succeed. It enables you to grasp a situation quickly, to understand clearly. It takes every ache and pain out of your system, and transforms every organ of your body to its normal healthy condition. Blood Wine contains no wine or opiates, simply medicines of wonderful curative characteristics that never disappoint.

In the business world "Blood Wine" is a great favorite with both men and women. Storekeepers, clerks, stenographers, bookkeepers, lawyers, clergymen, and all requiring a powerful agent to clear the brain, and aid them in business, take it.

Mrs. Annie Morgan of Waterville, Me., says: "I think it is my duty to let you know what benefit I have derived from taking your "Blood Wine." I have taken one bottle and a half, and feel wonderfully better. My appetite is improved; I do not suffer nearly so much, for I was all run down and felt tired all the time, and my brain seemed clouded. Your "Blood Wine" has benefited me so much that I feel grateful to have found it, and I can heartily recommend it to any one who is suffering from loss of appetite, nervousness, and all trouble arising from poor digestion, overwork, and a run-down condition in general."

"Blood Wine" costs fifty cents a bottle, but you can sample it, free of charge at

The Farm.

There spread the scene before my view—
The careless plowman's yell
The happy laughter in his eyes
That told that all was well,
And far away I heard the sound
Of sweet toned dinner bell.

The skiff upon the river bank,
The youngster at the oars,
The chickens in the barnyard, and
Along the river's shores
The calm horizon showed a line
Of noble sycamores.

The old moss covered well was there
With buckets dripping sweet,
And sparkling water seemed to give
Surcease from summer's heat,
And right below a country town
Seemed sleeping at my feet.

I saw the country preacher and
The quaint old village sage,
And rows of elm trees must have hid
The village parsonage.
Ah, if it hadn't been upon
The realistic stage!

Though born in Russia he came to this country early in life and has lived mostly in this country. He is strong and vigorous and engages in his hazardous occupation every day.

In alighting the door of the coop became wedged shut and the chickens were unable to get out in the morning.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy

If you are suffering from kidney or bladder disease, the doctor asks: "Do you desire to urinate often, and are you compelled to get up frequently during the night? Does your back pain you? Does you urine stain linen? Is there a scalding pain in passing it, and is it difficult to hold the urine back? If so, your kidneys or bladder are diseased."

Try putting some of your urine in a glass tumbler, let it stand twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment, or a cloudy, milky appearance, your kidneys are sick.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will surely relieve and cure the most distressing cases of these dread diseases and no physician can prescribe a medicine that equals it for kidney, liver, bladder and blood diseases, rheumatism ,dyspepsia and chronic constipation

Walter D. Miller of Delhi, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for years with kidney trouble and severe pains in my back, at times it was so bad I could hardly walk. My stomach also troubled me and I frequently had twinges of rheumatism. I suffered a great deal and received no benefit until I began the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. After taking it a short while it cured me."

B. & O. Build Terminal and Shops at Keyser, W. Va.---Engineers Meet Today at Pittsburg---Long Hauls on Connellsville Division---General Railway News.

Was Finally Crated.

The bull that escaped from Pan Handle train 10 Thursday morning while it was running 40 miles an hour, was captured and sent to its destination. The animal jumped from the baggage car half a mile east of Hanover and skipping gleefully over the hills trotted to its former home. It was permitted to recover from its excitement and was then put in a heavier crate and shipped to its destination. Trainmen experienced no trouble on its second trip.

B & O Shops at Keyser, W Va

Keyser, W Va., April 29.—The B & O will soon begin active operation to make this place thecentral operating point of the road

The plans call for the expenditure of about $1,000,000 during the next year and will cover the erection of a round house of over 50 stalls, machine shops employing 400 men and enlargement of the car building and repair shops now employing 270 men.

When completed the projected improvement will bring 2,000 men to the town. A number of B & O officials and contractors spent some time yesterday inspecting the company's holdings and locating the buildings. Contracts will be let in a short time and active operations begun

Shelby to Mansfield.

Mansfield, O., April 29—The right of way and partially graded roadbed of Charles French's short line from here to Shelby, representing an investment of nearly $100,000, was purchased at Sheriff's sale for $1,000 by Judge Lewis Bricker, who it is said, will make a deed for the property to D W Cummins, his law partner.

The sale not having been confirmed the buyer declines to make any statement concerning his plans. It is rumored that the Big Four is back of the deal and will acquire the short line for a branch from Shelby to Mansfield.

B & O Engineers to Meet.

The sixth annual meeting of the engineers of the B & O railroad system will be held at the hall of the Hazelwood Trust Company, April 29 and 30. On the evening of April 29 there will be an open meeting commencing at 7 o'clock. Business meetings will be held during the morning and evening of both days, which will be attended by representatives from all points along the B & O system. No pains have been spared by the committee to make this the banner session.

I H Nihion of 1103 Wylie avenue, is chairman of the committee and is assisted by R W Moore and W C Cox of Glenwood. The purpose of the meeting is to bring the men together that they may become better acquainted and come closer in touch with the workings of the different lines. On the evening of April 30, the women of divisions 59 and 70 will serve a supper to which all of the delegates are invited.—Pittsburg Post.

Where Long Trains Are Handled.

On the level river division of the B & O between Glenwood and Connellsville, where the grade does not vary more than 18 inches in 60 miles, they haul some great trains in these days with the monster modern consolidated engines Eastbound coke trains with 90 empty cars are not uncommon on this part of the road. The westbound trains haul the maximum tonnage with from 45 to 65 loaded cars. This is one of the most important parts of the B & O system.

It is the intention of the present B & O managers to make this a three track road before long. It is a double track line now with the exception of a few parts where there are old style bridges. All the bridges and tunnels will be widened and the B & O Pittsburg division will be made a four track road to Connellsville and a double track road from Connellsville to Cumberland

Most of the double track work between Connellsville and Cumberland has been completed but the widening of the big tunnels is a task that worries the engineers

Local Railroad Notes.

All the arrangements for the big dance to be given by Taylor Lodge, No 175, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen of this city, at Brennan's Hall this evening are complete, and the indications are that it will be the most successful of any ball ever given by the Brotherhood. A large number of tickets have been disposed of, and a large crowd will be in attendance.

The Order of Railroad Conductors from Parkersburg, W Va., and Marietta have contracted with the B & O for special trains from their cities to Columbus next Sunday. The trip will be simply an outing for the members and their families and friends.

The Pan Handle has now received, all told, 11 of the new Baldwin freight engines. They are arriving at the rate of one a day.

LIGHTNING

STRUCK THE HOUSE BUT ALL ESCAPED INJURY.

The Damage to Mr J E Holler's Residence Tuesday Morning Amounts to About $100.

During the thunder storm this morning lightning struck the residence of Mr J E Holler, who resides in the Cherry Valley, three miles west of the city, damaging the house to the extent of nearly one hundred dollars. The lightning struck one of the chimneys on the house, knocking it off and scattering the bricks in all directions and also tore off a considerable part of the weatherboarding from the east and north sides of the house. When the lightning struck the house Mr Holler was sitting near a window in the kitchen and his daughter was standing near the stove. Suddenly there was a blinding flash and the stove pipe came crashing to the floor, badly frightening the people who thought the whole house was tumbling down on them. All were shocked but escaped injury.

The records left by the Phoenicians, Assyrians and ancient Persians show that among all those nations the use of perfumes was very common.

An American battleship once had a visit from the king of Italy. The sergeant-at-arms of the king and his suite had a gold lace and decoration full dress uniform with sword. During the inspection one of the magnificent members of the suit stepped backward and disappeared. National League's Victory

The National League won a most sweeping victory in its fight on the new American League, Monday, when the Court of Common Pleas at Philadelphia to which the case had been remanded by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, decided the case of second baseman LaJoie, Pitchers Bernard and Fraser, members of the Philadelphia American team, having jumped the reserve clause in their contracts with the National League team of that city.

The following dispatch gives the news:

Philadelphia, April 29—Court of Common pleas yesterday granted a perpetual injunction against Second Baseman LaJoie and Pitchers Bernard and Frazer, restraining them from playing with any base ball club other than the Philadelphia National league club.

Although yesterday's decision of the court practically makes the injunction against the players permanent, technically the restraining order will not be made permanent until the National Lague amends the bill of complaint to cover the season of 1902. The original bill on which the decision was rendered covered only the season of 1901.

President Ban Johnson, before leaving for the West, yesterday issued a call for a special meeting of the American League to be held in Cleveland on Wednesday. A full attendance is expected and the whole situation will be gone over and a line of campaign mapped out.

Mr Johnson woud not divulge his plans.

The owners of the Philadelphia American League club, President Johnson and the three American League attorneys held a conference on Monday afternoon. When they separated Benjamin F Shibe the president of the local American League club said. "The decision of the judges was a great surprise to us. We shall carry the case to the supreme court and feel confident the lower court will be reversed. Our attorneys will at once take the necessary steps for any appeal"

Manager Mack said that while the loss of LaJoie, Bernard and Frazer would be a big handicap, he believed that he could get along without them until the supreme court decides on the case.

John J Rogers of the National League club said:

"Under the ruling of the supreme court no other action was possible. I shall at once prepare cases against Monte Cross, Flick and Duggleby, who are now playing with the local American League team and shall apply for injunctions against them. In view of Monday's decision I am more than satisfied that the injunction will be granted."

Manager Mack and Pitchers Bernard and Frazer left Monday night for Washington where the team is playing. Lajoie remained here. He declares that he will never return to the local National League club.

The decision appears to be unjust, but the bill of complaint does not come in full enough form to elaborately argue the matter It looks, though, as if the ball player had few rights in equity. The reserve clause does not appear at all fair to the player. When he signs a contract, this clause forbids him signing with any other club at the end of the season, unless the club in which he played waives its right to his services. He may be suspended without pay, and kept out of signing with any other club where he could earn a living, or he may be "played on the bench" for an entire season. The club virtually owns him as it does any of its chattels, and if the Pennsylvania decision is good law he seems to have no redress On the other hand the club may release the player outright with 10 days' notice without any cause whatever. There seems to be no reciprocal consideration. The contract appears to bind the player for his baseball life, and the club for 10 days.

In the interest of the great game, it is to be hoped that the American League will win in its legal fight with the arrogant and discredited old organization.

Brush, Freedman et al probably have more respect for Col John Rogers' legal opinion that they had at the winter meeting, when they made him the butt of their ridicule.

Columbus was cheated out of a victory by the rain on Monday. The game had to be called off at the end of the fourth, with the score 2 to 0 in the Senators' favor.

Minneapolis got out of the maiden class Monday, winning from Toledo 8 to 3.

Old "Cy" Young put another winner over for Boston American, Monday. As years go by "Cy" improves.

Monte Cross made two home runs at Washington Monday in the slugging bee with Philadelphia.

Contract Jumping.

The following dispatch tells of Jimmy Sheckard's latest feat in the art of contract jumping:

Baltimore, April 29.—Manager John Graw, of the Baltimore American League club, Monday received a telegram from Outfielder James T. Sheckard, dated Philadelphia, saying that he had made up his mind to return to the Brooklyn National League club. The officials of the local club will take legal action to recover the advance money paid him, the expenses of training in the south and whatever other damage possible.

Beyond a doubt Sheckard is the most despicable ball player that ever wore a uniform. He has no more regard for his written contract than for his word, which he values so lightly. Sheckard it was who spit in Umpire Cunningham's face at Cincinnati, and other of his acts stamp him as a rowdy and fool. He should be blacklisted and ostracised by all decent members of the profession.

The American students representing Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, won from the English students of Oxford and Cambridge, in the cable chess match winning 4, losing 1 and drawing one. The score, America 4 1 2, England 1 1-2. The Rice trophy, which has had a home in England for three years will return to America

On Friday afternoon, May 9, Denison University will play the strong team from Ohio Wesleyan, and the game will attract more than usual interest from the fact that the Methodists have been coached by Dan Daub, Denison's mainstay during the early 90's. Each team will strain every effort to win the game, and many are of the opinion that Daub's new proteges will have to take second place to the team whose colors he once wore

---

Cincinnati had an off day Monday, and will also be idle Tuesday and Wednesday. They open in Chicago, May 1, for three games, jumping to Pittsburg for next Sunday's game.

The sporting writer of the Advocate wishes to acknowledge the receipt of a season ticket, to Neil park, Columbus, with grand stand privileges, sent him by President Bryce of the Columbus base ball club

Jake Beckley interfered with Barclay of St. Louis, while the latter was running from third base, home, on his four base hit, in Sunday's game, and Barclay was considerably shaken up, and was going to resent the piece of "dirty ball." It was surprising to read in the Enquirer's gossip of Monday, a mild defense of "Eagle Eyes'" unwarranted conduct. When Beckley was with Pittsburg the Enquirer called him a "leg breaker" and other equally forcible names, because of just such acts as Sunday. Why then defend him in the same tactics just because he wears a Cincinnati uniform? The sporting writer of the Enquirer should come out fairly and squarely against such kind of ball, and administer rebukes to any player who indulges in it, whether a member of the home team or not. It is unsportsmanlike, cruel and criminal.

Harold H Weeks, Columbia's great "hurdler" half back of 1901, won the 100 yards dash in the field games in New York in 10 2-5 seconds, from scratch.

Fitz to Go West.

A Scripps-McRae telegram from New York to the Advocate at noon said: Bob Fitzsimmons will leave for San Francisco the latter part of this week for the purpose of arranging details for his coming championship battle with Jim Jeffries. Fitzsimmons realizes that by being on the spot he can do a great deal more to bring the match to an issue. Fitz will probably train at Catalena Island in Los Angeles where he has already been offered a place by a friend to get in shape for the mill.

ANIMAL FATS

People of Bilious Temperament Must Use Them Sparingly.

Those who work at an indoor occupation and who have but little exercise should eat sparingly of animal fats; also those of a bilious temperament. If this class would eat less animal fat and more of vegetable oils, they would soon find a great change for the better in their health.

The human system demands certain foods to rebuild the daily loss, and if this loss is not repaired the human machine will soon stop for lack of motive power. There must be certain portions of albumen to supply the daily waste in the brain and nerve cells, and the daily waste of fat and tissue must be replaced.

Certain grains properly prepared, furnish the albumen, gluten and phosphates needed by the brain and nerve cells, and vegetable oils rebuild the fat and tissue.

All those elements of nutrition demanded by nature are supplied in Malt-Nut, the twice-cooked, malted food. It is a combination of four cereals properly blended and scientifically prepared, they being exposed to intense heat, which takes them through the first and hardest stages of digestion, and are then treated to the emulsified oil of nuts.

The blending of nature's food elements into Malt-Nut gives it four times as much nutrition as beef and makes it an ideal perfect food.

The rich, nutty flavor so pleases the palate that when once eaten it becomes a steady addition to the bill of fare. It can be served direct from the package with milk or cream, or into a score of dainty dishes.

Sedars-Glassmeier.

One of the most pleasant affairs in the history of the West End was the marriage of Miss Zoa Sedars to Mr. George Glasmeier at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Harry Schrum on Thirteenth street, April 20. The bride was attired in spotless white while both were wreathed in smiles. After the ceremony a delicious repast was indulged in by all present. May the shadows of the sweet amaranthine bowers shed peace and beauty in their pathway.

Weights and Measures.

One teaspoonful equals one dram.

One dessertspoonful equals two spoonfuls or two drams.

One tablespoonful equals two dessertspoonfuls or four spoonfuls.

Two tablespoonfuls equal eight teaspoonfuls or one ounce.

One common size wineglass equals two ounces or one-half gill.

A teacup is estimated to hold four fluid ounces or one gill.

Ten ordinary sized eggs weigh one pound.

Soft butter the size of an egg weighs one ounce.

One quart of sifted flour well heaped weighs one pound.

One pint of best brown sugar weighs thirteen ounces.

Two teacupfuls level of granulated sugar weigh one pound.

Two teacupfuls of soft butter well packed weigh one pound.

One and a third pints of powdered sugar weigh one pound.

Two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar or flour weigh one ounce.

A Cooling Shelf.

The housewife wants to set pies and other hot dishes out to cool, but blowing snow in winter, with blasts of cold air rushing into the pantry, make the plan inconvenient, while in summer protection is equally needed. Make a framework outside the window, as shown in the illustration, so that the window will slide up and down by it. Cover well with cotton cloth, and you have a cooling closet by simply raising the pantry window a foot or so.

OUTSIDE THE WINDOW.

Appropriate Furnishings.

Each room should be furnished in strict accordance with its purpose, and no room should more pre-eminently designate its object than the dining room. Whatever its decorations, they should be simple and chaste. All its pictures should be of an associative and not of a comparative character; wherefore it is that designs of fruit, fish, game or the like are never in particularly good taste. The English dining room is typically characteristic of the people. There is always an air of good cheer, heartiness and solidity about it. One of the largest rooms on the first floor, away from the kitchen, is reserved for the purpose. The furniture is substantial and plain. On the sideboard there are placed a few large, handsome silver pieces, but not the entire contents of the plate chest, and on the walls there are usually family portraits, not necessarily chromos. Palms and flowers are introduced wherever available and plenty of light and good ventilation, those being rightly considered indispensable.

Utility Boxes.

Boxes for holding odds and ends—utility boxes they are called—are pentagonal in shape and stand about two feet high. They are lined with art ticking, and inside are several pockets, besides plenty of room in the center. The art ticking covers the outside of the box, and there is a deep valence. The cover is hinged and provided with a fancy metal handle with which to lift it. Shirt waist boxes are made in the same way and of the same material, but are oblong in shape. These boxes are intended for rooms where space is at a premium and serve as seats as well as boxes.

A Rake For Ashes.

If there are still people who have to use coal stoves and work over ashes, here is a little convenience which they will find invaluable. It is a gardener's three tined fork—not a foot long, handle and all. A man who looks after his own fires in a few rooms in a big, old fashioned house uses one of these forks, keeping it always in the bed to push the coal up on to the shovel and to separate pieces of coal from clinkers in the ashes. He makes use of it in so many ways that he feels that it would be difficult now to do without it. A little fork of this kind will cost probably 10 cents.

Boiled Rice and Maple Sugar.

Serve boiled rice well drained, packed in a buttered mold and placed in the open oven for five minutes, then carefully turned out on a heated dish. With it serve plenty of good butter and scraped maple sugar.—Table Talk.

Whipped Cream For Cake.

Cake should be filled with whipped cream at the very last moment, or the cream will soften the cake and make it soggy.

THE SEASON ON.

THE day so long awaited
Has rolled around at last.
And cranks and fans and rooters
Again are breathing fast,
For on the baseball diamond
Again the heroes pose,
Each thrilling with excitement
From head down to his toes.

The grand stand's overflowing,
And packed are bleachers, too;
Through knotholes in the fences
The peepers take a view.
On nearby poles and houses
The nervy urchins roost,
And every one is ready
To give the game a boost.

Soon forward comes the umpire,
The chap who knows it all;
Around he proudly glances,
And then he yells, "Play ball!"
The pitcher gets in action,
A white sphere cleaves the air,
And then the baseball season
Is opened up for fair.

The subsequent proceedings
Are very much the same
As those so often witnessed
In playing of the game.
The cranks again go crazy
O'er unexpected feats,
And rooters in their frenzy
Tear up the bleacher seats.

There's sprinting round the bases
While watching thousands cheer,
And when there comes a homer
They wreck the atmosphere.
At times a raw decision
Makes trouble in the game,
And "Kill dat rotten empire!"
Wild bleacherites exclaim.

But soon the trouble's ended,
And onward goes the fun,
The rooting and the roasting
Until the game is done,
And then at every corner,
As in the days of yore,
Comes from the anxious fellows
The question "What's the score?"

CIPHER MESSAGES

[Original.]

When Mary Barnard and I were schoolfellows, we were lovers. When Mary came to be eighteen, I was twenty-one. She had matured more rapidly than I, who still bore traces of the boy. Mary's parents were thinking of her settlement for life, and I was not yet thinking of making a beginning, for I had not finished studying my profession. A prominent and wealthy man of forty named Disbrow was paying her attention. It was plain that he would be acceptable so far as the parents were concerned, and I could not detect any unwillingness on Mary's part. Our relationship had changed after leaving school. We no longer spoke from the heart, and I would not think of asking her how she liked her elderly suitor.

All doubt as to the result was at last removed by the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Disbrow. Her parents showed plainly that they were much pleased, and Mary—well, at times I thought she seemed sad, at others satisfied. Meanwhile an elaborate trousseau was being provided and preparations were making for the wedding.

On the day I returned from the law school, having finished my studies, the cards for Mary's wedding were distributed. I did not go to see her, remaining at home in great despondency. I can remember no mental anguish in my life so sharp as thinking of Mary Barnard the wife of another. One morning—it was the day before the wedding—I received a note from her asking if her old schoolfellow would not call and say goodby to her as a maiden and intimating that she would be at home at 4 o'clock that afternoon. I did not wish to go. I saw nothing to be gained by going. Nevertheless I was still boy enough to hope that some interposition might save her from the monster Disbrow, as I considered him, and keep her for me. At the appointed hour I called.

Instead of Mary coming to receive me, her mother walked in very stiffly and very coldly.

"Mary is too busy to see you," she said, "and has asked me to excuse her to you. She hopes to see you at the wedding."

The truth of all this was disproved a few minutes later by Mary herself, who came into the drawing room. Her mother gave her an angry glance, muttered something about leaving things undone, then settled herself in her chair to be present at the interview.

What was my surprise to see Mary leave the whole of the conversation to her mother and me, taking up a book, which she read during the whole of my call. Meanwhile she was fingering an ivory paper cutter with a penknife on one end. I was so distressed and incensed that had it not been for my pride I would have left the house at once; but, desiring to show her that I was as cold as she, I conversed gayly with her mother. When I rose to leave, Mary handed me the book she had been reading, recommending it as one that would interest me. On reaching my room I looked at the title, and when I saw that it was "How to Get on In the World" I threw it into a corner and, sinking on a lounge, buried my face in my hands.

It was growing dark when I got up, took the book from the corner and, striking a light, began to run over the leaves mechanically. Why I did so I don't remember, except that the dear hands of the girl I loved had so recently held it. I noticed under one of the words a cut. On the next page was another. Glancing back at the first, I saw that it was "Why." The second was "have." Turning the pages rapidly, I was but a moment deciphering the sentence, "Why have you deserted me?"

There were but five words, but they were enough. Was it too late? Only twenty-four hours before the wedding! What could I do? To call at the house and tell her of my love would hardly be practicable, for her mother would scarcely brook a second call so soon after the first and would be present, as before. Taking the book she had lent me, I underscored the words: "My schoolboy love is a man's love. Find some way to delay the wedding or break off the match entirely." The same evening I sent a messenger with the book and a formal note, unsealed, thanking her for lending it to me and wishing her great happiness in her marriage.

That night I did not close my eyes in sleep and spent the next day in a mental fever. The wedding was to be at 7 o'clock and the reception at half past 7. Had Mary received the book? Would she and could she delay the marriage?

About 4 o'clock I went out for a walk, hoping to gain some relief from the terrible suspense. Meeting a boy with the evening papers, I bought one. After giving a glance at the headings on the first page I was about to put the paper in my pocket when my eye caught the words, "A Wedding Delayed." With a flash of hope I scanned what followed:

"Owing to the indisposition of Miss Mary Barnard, who was to have been married this evening to Mr. Charles M. Disbrow, the wedding has been postponed."

The transition from the terrible strain I had been under to a wild joy very nearly brought a swoon.

It was not known to any except the family that on receipt of my cipher message Mary told her expectant husband that she did not love him and he released her. A year later another engagement was announced, followed by a speedy marriage. Mary Barnard was the bride; I was the groom.

ASA BROWN DALLETT.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Sport With an Egg.

Put some quicksilver in a quill and seal the quill at both ends with good hard wax. Roast or boil an egg and take off a small bit of the shell at the narrow end. Put into it your quill of quicksilver and lay the egg on the ground. So long as there is any heat in the egg it will never stop tumbling bout.

Another egg trick is that of putting an egg inside a bottle. Soak an egg in strong vinegar until its shell becomes quite soft. You can then insert it into the bottle, and by pouring in cold water it will resume its former figure and hardness.

You cannot spin an egg unless you have prepared the egg in advance in the following way: Boil the egg hard Take it in the finger and thumb and spin it on the large end. If you spin it on a plate, you can keep the egg spinning as long as you please by revolving the plate in a plane in a direction opposite to that in which the egg is spinning.

Feeding Captive Birds.

The secret of feeding birds in captivity is to give them as great a variety of wholesome food as you can For seed they should have a mixture of canary rape, flax or linseed, small groats and a little hemp and millet. In cold weather more hemp and some maw seed and a little lettuce seed occasionally, particularly if there is any diarrhea about. For green stuff use lettuce, watercress, groundsel, chickweed and nearly any sort of fruit, but it should not be given to them wet. Once or twice a week for a treat a mixture of hard boiled egg chopped small and powdered biscuit will be greatly appreciated. In feeding them don't make things too easy. Remember that birds dearly love occupation of any kind. I knew a lady once who used to chop up the watercress "to save the poor, dear things the trouble of biting it off." But I need scarcely say that this is a great mistake.

Little Mothers In Japan.

Although the empire of Japan is said to be a "paradise of children," where they are allowed to do very much as they please and where they seldom if ever cry, their life is not all play. The little boys and girls have their work to do, but in many skillful ways they turn work into play. Take, for instance, the little girls who have their baby sisters or brothers to care for. They tuck the youngsters into their queer garments and go on with their games of ball. If the baby grows tired and begins to fret, the "little mother" jounces it up and down over her shoulder with a peculiar bumping motion of her back without stopping the game. All the time she sings some pretty song.

If Father Is on Deck.

A story is told of a sweet little girl of eight years on board her father's vessel when a terrific storm arose and the passengers gathered about in frightened groups, evidently fearful of losing their lives. The child's face was white, her lips quivered with fear, and she said tremblingly: "What is the matter? Has anything happened?" She was told that a great storm was raging, and, with eyes dilated, she said, "Where's father?" "He is on deck, dear," said a lady kindly as she drew her to her side. Instantly her face grew calm. "If father is on deck, all will be well," she exclaimed.—Ram's Horn.

Like a brownie on stilts,
With his sweet little frau,
The chickadee tilts
On a sycamore bough.

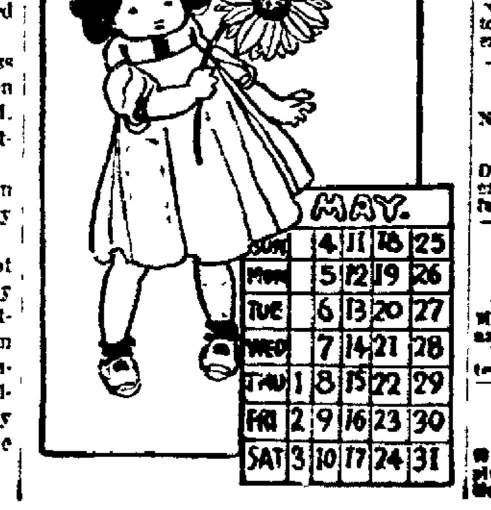

The chickadee wears
A cunning black cap.
In all his affairs
The chickadee wears,
Without any airs—
The dear little chap—
The chickadee wears
A cunning black cap.

The chickadee's song
Is "Chick-a-dee-dee."
It is not very long,
The chickadee's song;
Not much for a throng,
But it satisfies me.
The chickadee's song
Is "Chick-a-dee-dee."

The chickadee nests
In the heart of a tree.
The cats are not guests
Where the chickadee nests;
No robber molests
His little tepee.
The chickadee nests
In the heart of a tree.

The chickadee stays
All the year round.
On cold winter days
The chickadee stays;
The catbird delays
Till daisies abound;
The chickadee stays
All the year round.

PAINE'S Celery Compound

Is the Only Medicine That Can Promptly and Permanently Banish All Wasting and Dangerous Diseases.

It Restores Lost Health When Physicians Pronounce Your Case Incurable.

If, in springtime, sick people—young and old—act with promptness, wisdom and decision, suffering, agony and misery would never be carried into the summer months.

To delay the work of banishing disease, regulating the nerves, purifying the blood, and restoring perfect digestion is a serious mistake.

When the blood is sluggish, impure, and poisoned, when the nervous system is unbalanced, when digestion is deranged, and the appetite poor and variable, be assured your condition is critical, and calls for instant attention before the summer months bring additional dangers.

At this time the use of Paine's Celery Compound will do a marvelous work for every run down, sick and diseased man and woman.

Its life giving work first commences with the blood, which is made clean and pure; then the nerves are quickly set in order, digestive vigor is fully restored, the appetite is made natural sleep is refreshing, and the desponding heart is made light and joyous.

It is well to bear in mind that Paine's Celery Compound owes its origin to the most distinguished physician that this American continent ever produced, and his marvelous prescription is publicly endorsed by our best and ablest physicians.

If all sufferers who have been disappointed in the past will promptly start with Paine's Celery Compound, they will be astonished and delighted with the speed with which this wonderful remedy is able to call a halt to wasting and dangerous diseases. It is now making tens of thousands well and strong, and fitting them to enjoy the summer months which, to the well and strong, are pleasurable and happy.

DIAMOND DYES are the simplest dyes made. A child can use them.

BOILING WATER

The Little Tot Pulled off the Stove.

And Her Body Was Badly Scalded—Mr W C Briggs' Baby Badly Hurt.

Ottillee, the little one year old daughter of Mr W C Briggs, the well known B & O fireman, was the victim of a painful and serious accident this morning. The little one, who is just able to toddle about, was playing in the kitchen, when she espied a basin of water that was on the stove. She managed to pull the basin off the stove, the boiling contents of which struck her on the neck, and ran down her body, badly burning her neck and breast. Dr. D M Smith attended to her injuries.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT—Mr. E M Barrett, of the B & O tin shop, swore out a warrant in the Mayor's court this morning for the arrest of James Boyne, a workman in the shops, on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. Boyne was arrested at noon by Officer Zergiebel, and he gave bond for his appearance in the Mayor's court on Thursday morning in the sum of $100.

WILD CAT

Charleston. W. Va., April 29.—For several hours a wild cat stopped all business of the United States Express company, held up the employes and had undisputed sway over the office in this city. The animal was received at the office of the company Sunday, consigned to a point requiring a transfer here. The box containing the feline was deposited in the office of Agent Wickerstine, who thought no more about it until yesterday morning, when he was opening up for business. Then the startling discovery was made that the animal clawed its way out of the box during the night. For a long time the cat had things all its own way, no one essaying to enter the office. It was finally dispatched with a rifle.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
